Day 04 / 11 July'16:            In Jaipur

Breakfast at the hotel.

Start your city tour with the excursion to the splendid Amber Fort, an architectural masterpiece of great historical significance. Begun in the 16th century and built of red sandstone and marble, the seemingly rough exterior gives no hint of the warm and opulent ambiance of the interior, as you'll discover this morning. Here you also get an opportunity to climb up to the fort on decorated elephant back.

In the afternoon visit the splendid City Palace & Museum which opens a door into the opulent world of the Rajput princes and the treasures with which they surrounded themselves. The City Palace complex is home to several palatial buildings constructed by influential rulers that reflect the blending of Rajasthani and Mughal architectural styles. Maharaja Jai Singh II built JantarMantar, the world's biggest stone observatory, between 1727 and 1733 AD. You'll be amazed by the "tools" he used to study the heavens – and that still provide accurate information today – during a tour. Further visit the Palace of Winds also known as HawaMahal, a five storeyed wonder with a spectacular pyramidal facade and overhanging windows with latticed screens, domes and spires.

Evening enjoy your Dinner outside the hotel at a nice restaurant while enjoying traditional dance & music.
